

Chelsy tears strip off Harry!

FURY AFTER HE OGLED LAPDANCERS' BOOBS

EXCLUSIVE

BY CLIVE GOODMAN
& NEVILLE THURLBECK

SHAME-FACED Prince Harry has been given a furious Chelsy Davy dressing-down over his late-night antics in a lapdancing bar.

His loyal girlfriend discovered how strippers perched on the edge of his chair as he partied with a string of naked dancers and ogled their boobs.

Yesterday the repentant Prince took an ear-bashing phone call as news broke. "It's Chelsy. How could you? I see you had a lovely time without me. But I miss you so much, you big ginger, and I want you to know I love you," said a hysterical voice.

Luckily the caller was Joker brother Prince William. He thought the whole episode was hilarious and decided to take the mickey by putting on a high-pitched South African accent like Chelsy's.

Harry saw the funny side. But in Cape Town the REAL Chelsy was already seething over reports of the Prince celebrating passing out of Sandhurst with his military chums at a Spearminth Rhino club.

To add insult to injury, Harry even talked about his girlfriend as he chatted up the strippers. The Prince told one girl: "She's beautiful."

Chelsy snapped as she returned to her Cape Town apartment in the early hours: "I've got nothing to say. No comment, no comment, no comment." Privately, friends say she's hopping mad. One said: "How would you feel if your boyfriend was discussing you with strippers? Not very nice, is it?"

HOPPING MAD: Chelsy after hearing of Harry's exploits at the club, right

Yesterday Chelsy, above, who is due to fly in on Tuesday for Harry's official passing-out celebrations, was getting a barrage of "I'm sorry" texts from him. But the friend said: "She wants a proper face-to-face. This can't keep on happening."

Meanwhile it was revealed how the Prince charmed some of the girls at the club—who include the pair above—into giving him £20 dances for FREE.

They compared stories afterwards and discovered he had told each of them in turn: "Cor, I think you've got the best boobs in the club!"

PORTRAIT: Charles n' Camilla

Annabella, 22, revealed last night: "Harry's eyes were popping out like organ stops when the girls danced for him. He was inches away from one girl's boobs as she stripped."

"But he was really cute. When the dance had finished, he spoke to the girl and whispered that she had the best boobs in the club."

"The girl, who is called Margo and from Russia, was flattered. In fact she was so flattered she gave Harry a free lapdance, which is unheard of."

"Harry just sat back and enjoyed it with a cheeky grin on his face."

Annabella explained that the club in Slough, Berks, above, has a strict no-touching rule for customers—but the girls usually sit on the punters' knees. She added:

"Margo was a little more discreet with Harry—she just sat on the arm of his chair. A lot of the girls were keen to chat to him. With each one, he told them they had the best boobs in the club and they all fell for it."

"As a result, he and his mates were given free lap dances for over an hour. I think they only paid for one!"

"About five girls danced for them, all taking their bras off and giving Harry a real eyeful."

"It wasn't till they left we realised he had been using that line on everyone."

The girls, all scantily clad in skimpy underwear and high heels, clustered around Harry and his pals until they left at 4am.

Tease

But she said club bosses made sure the girls' antics didn't go too far.

She explained "When the management realised it was Harry, they sent down the word for us to be on our best behaviour. Some of the girls can go over the top a little and tease and touch the customers. But with Harry, we kept a little distance."

"He seemed to be a real boob man but a gentleman too. It was just a bit of fun. We all had a really good laugh."

Clarence House—which yesterday released an official portrait of Charles and Camilla to mark their first wedding anniversary—refused to comment on Harry's visit to the club.

But a senior aide snorted: "He's joined the Army, not a monastery."

WERE you one of the lapdancers? If so call the News of the World on 020 7782 1001, email newsdesk@notw.co.uk or send a text to 07770 381 560.

PROBE AS MAN SHOT IN STREET

A MURDER probe was launched yesterday after a man was gunned down in a city street.

Residents in Pendrell Road, Brockley, south-east London, reported hearing gun blasts at 1.30am.

The man was found later by detectives at a spot nearby. They believe he was driven from the scene and dumped.

An ambulance was called but the victim was dead before it arrived.

Operation Trident—the Met Police's "black on black" crime unit—was called in to investigate. A police spokeswoman said: "We are keeping an open mind regarding motive."

Cops last night refused to release the man's details but said his relatives had been informed. Formal identification of the body and a post-mortem is due today.

Sunday MAGAZINE

Reese's darkest family
secret

INSIDE TODAY

MAYHEM IN SNOW STORMS

FREAK snow storms across the North East of England forced football matches to be abandoned and caused chaos on the roads.

Sunderland's Premiership match against Fulham at the Stadium of Light was called off midway through the first half after a sudden fall of heavy snow.

Referee Mike Riley said he had no choice as the light faded and conditions became treacherous.

In Newcastle, traffic ground to a halt on several roads as the city got more than an inch of snow.

Some parts of the Midlands, Scotland, and North Wales were also hit.

The Met Office forecast showers and strong winds in the next few days. But the weather should improve.

Met Office spokesman Dave Cox said: "It looks like it's going to be quite a pleasant Easter."

SOUND OF MU-SICK

NHS The Musical, which follows three patients through the history of the National Health Service, opens in Plymouth on May 15.